TEACHING AND RESEARCH EXPERIENCES

I transform my career from an information management engineer to a teacher, so really emphasis on combining theory and practice. I taught many subjects such as Management Research Method, Logistic Management, Social Computing and Simulation, Social network for Resettlement, Sustainable Hydropower Development. I have accumulated plentiful teaching experience and kept a good record of performance. Currently I am an Associate professor and a postgraduate supervisor of management science and engineering, and guides five postgraduate students.

My research interests mainly focus on the interdisciplinary subject, which overlap management science, social science and computer science. I have been involved in the research of this field for more than 10 years. I participated in many research projects as primary researcher and published a lot of research papers both in Chinese and English. I also offer consulting services to government and enterprises by writing research reports. I have acquired much research experience by cooperating with International scholars and attending international conferences.
